Let's keep kids safe online

The NSPCC has created a useful resource that allows parents to quickly and easily find out about the games and apps children are using. Read a combination of reviews from parents, children and the game/app creators alongside an overview of the risks.

There are two versions of Fortnite; Save the World and Battle Royale. Currently there is a free version of Battle Royale and Epic Games have said that they will be releasing a free version of Save the World sometime this year.

Epic Games reported that there were 3.4 million concurrent players at the start of February 2018.

Although free, there are in-game purchases to buy outfits, weapons and other helpful items. Keep track of what your child is purchasing.

Fortnite offers three levels of privacy settings: Public, where anyone can enter your child's online party; Friends, where only friends can join a party; and Private, which means that no one can enter your child's party without being invited by the child themselves. Parentzone have written an informative article on the risks of playing this game and steps you can take to safeguard your child.

Parents and Carers guide to Musical.ly (live video streaming)

Child Exploitation and Online Protection Agency (CEOP) has seen an increase in the popularity of the app Musical.ly amongst young people. As a result, they have created a guide for parents and carers to help them understand more about Musical.ly and its features.

Northeast recommend parents always check for updates from the UK Safer Internet Centre

Tips, advice, guides and resources to help keep your child safe online

Parental controls are software and tools which you can install on phones or tablets, games consoles or laptops – and even your home broadband. They are used to block, filter and control when and how much your child sees online.

Popular parental control apps are Qustodio, Kapersky Safe Kids, Boomerang and Net Nanny.

The NSPCC has a page which has lots of useful links:

An online survey of 2000 young people aged 8-17 years was conducted for Safer Internet Day 2018.

It shows just how linked technology is to young people's relationships and highlights both the positive and negative roles it plays. Find out more here: <https://www.saferinternet.org.uk/digital-friendships>
